

FISCAL NOTE

HB 113 - SB 1078

April 4, 2001

SUMMARY OF BILL: Limits establishment of residential restitution programs to counties having a metropolitan government with population in excess of 600,000, according to the 1990 or any subsequent federal census. Such programs allow persons convicted of felony offenses and sentenced to the workhouse to reimburse the victim for the value of stolen or damaged property. Current law allows the establishment of such a program in any county having a metropolitan government.

ESTIMATED FISCAL IMPACT:

Decrease Local Govt. Expenditures - Not Significant

As no county meets the population requirements under the provisions of the bill, any county currently operating a restitution program as provided for in current law would no longer be authorized to do so. To the extent the sheriff in a county with a metropolitan government has established such a restitution program, the county will experience a decrease in expenditures for the administrative costs of such program.
